

GIBBS SAYS PRIEST WHO BACKS SINN FEIN IS DISLOYAL

Stokes Fife of Hate, Incites to Physical Conflict, Charges Lecturer.

REPLY TO FR. DUFFY

Irish Pamphlets Viewed as Urging War Between U.S. and Britain.

CHAPLAIN DEPLORES WAR

Asserts in Another Meeting That Money Will Be Cause, if It Ever Comes.

Sir Philip Gibbs closed a lecture on the Irish situation last night with the unequivocal charge that Catholic priests in American who are supporting the Sinn Fein direct actionists are unfaithful to the ideals of their vocation, "stoking up the bad fires of hate and doing no service to humanity." Sir Philip, with policemen spread all about, spoke in the Casino Theatre and lauded his challenge at the Rev. Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the 16th Infantry, who addressed 1,500 persons in the Selwyn Theatre in answer to Sir Philip's lecture on February 25.

"I can't understand these Catholic priests, how they can reconcile their faith, believe in their Master's word, and at the same time incite to physical conflict," Sir Philip said. "I have read articles and pamphlets prepared by Sinn Fein as a direct incitement to war between the United States and England. If there ever is a war—which there never will be—between these two races, that will be the end of civilization, and the end of Christianity, to whom service Father Duffy and his colleagues have dedicated themselves."

Sir Philip's introductory words at a meeting that was long unbroken for a time and then was punctuated with frequent interruptions of Irish sympathizers, were prophetic. He declared there was a duel on in New York between himself and Father Duffy, "and the buttons are off our folk."

Irish Meeting Orderly.

While Sir Philip was directing his words against what he considered the dangerous action of Catholic priests and Irish Americans in support of the Sinn Fein cause, Father Duffy spoke to one of the most orderly Irish meetings. In the opinion of observers, in the history of New York.

"Father Duffy and his colleagues do not see the danger of what they are doing," Sir Philip said, giving his words an earnestness that varied from the deliberateness of his discussion of Irish history earlier in the evening. "They don't see that they are playing with hell fire."

In the Selwyn Theatre these were Father Duffy's words in regard to a possible war between England and America over the Irish question: "I don't want war with England. I often feel that those who want war never saw its horrors. If ever we have armed conflict with the British it will be over the question of money—it will be a ghastly war. Anybody who deliberately lets loose these wares on the world should be condemned to a hell more terrible than Milton or Dante ever dreamed of."

Sir Philip began his discussion of the attitude of the Irish Americans by describing Father Duffy as a "great gentleman and a fine sportsman." At the Carnegie Hall meeting of February 25 Father Duffy helped quell disorder when Irish sympathizers refused to let Sir Philip proceed. Father Duffy on that occasion announced that he did not agree with the conclusions of the speaker on the Irish question.

After paying his compliment, Sir Philip said: "A few words about Father Duffy. He is on the side of evil and not of good."

Threat From Balcony.

In the second row of the balcony a man arose and shouted: "Look out! The Sixty-ninth (referring to the New York regiment) will get you to-morrow." Sir Philip paused a moment and then proceeded, his criticism of the Irish-Americans and Catholic priests closing an address marked by the seeming sympathy of the audience, and by here and there frequent objections of a small knot of persons in the front of the balcony.

Capt. Harry Howard of the West Thirtieth street precinct and about thirty policemen were posted in the theatre. They guarded the aisles, were in the boxes, the foyer and back of the stage. As fast as interruptions were shouted at Sir Philip a cop hurried to the side of the heckler, pointed a long night stick and got order. No one was ejected and there was no trouble beyond the interruptions.

Father Duffy said the dictates of justice demand that the British Government remove its army forces from Ireland and let the Irish people set up the Government of their wish. The English conquest of Ireland began in 1170 A. D. he said, and has not ended yet. The priest referred to the Irish question as "the one unsolved question in the troubled history of the world."

"This Irish question is not merely a domestic question for the British Isles to settle," Father Duffy continued. "It is, and always has been, a danger to the world. The great war began when the Germans felt sure there was going to be a rebellion and mutiny in the north of Ireland. The French Directory and Napoleon both tried to hit England through Ireland. The Spaniards and the Scotch also tried to make use of Irish grievances to conduct their attack on England."

Sympathy Not for War.

"Yes, and the time will come when a discontented Ireland will be a breeding place of trouble between Great Britain and the United States. Ireland now has few friends in this country among those who make peace or war. And, moreover, her sympathies are not trying for war. All the solemn people of this country are sore on Ireland now. The solemn statesman, the solemn professor, the solemn editor, the solemn clergyman—all have a grievance against Ireland because they have been shown up. The Irish persist in taking at face value all the solemn stuff that did service while the war was on about the rights of small nations and human liberties and self-determination and all the rest of it. The Irish have called the world's bluff and have proved that they did not mean it."

"But if there came a clash of great political or economic interests between the two countries some strings would be pulled and our big agencies which control public opinion would begin to harp on British denial of liberty in Ireland and British atrocities in Ireland in exactly the same way that the British writers use Poland as a means to hit the Czar, and Belgium in our times as a means of provoking resentment against Germany."

The Irish know perfectly well with whom they have to deal in this matter, and he is neither king nor baronet, but a mighty tough little commoner, Mr. David Lloyd George. Read the papers day by day and you will find no indication on the Government side in England to make any change in the Irish policies—not even a truce with the fighting rebels," says the Premier, and Greenwood is stuck on his job and carry out his policy of schrecklichkeit."

"England knows that her government in Ireland is a failure," the priest added. "It is the most ghastly of alien governments all over the world. The British say the Irish cannot govern themselves. I say give them a chance. They can do any worse than the English have done themselves for 750 years. Nearly all the crime in Ireland that they talk about has been crime against British rule."

Cardinal Logue says:

Prisoners' Psychology to Undergo Color Test

THE four cell blocks of the East View Penitentiary, in Westchester county, are being repainted, and Warden Warren McClellan announced yesterday that he was trying to see the effect that color has on criminals. He is permitting each prisoner to select the color for the walls of his cell. The prisoners will be watched to see if the selections have any psychological effect. The officials, however, have fixed the color for the corridors. It will be light brown.

HOT DEBATE OVER ANDERSON TO-NIGHT

Former Regimental Associates to Pass on His Presence in Rhine Meeting.

A hot fight is forecast for the meeting to-night in the Waldorf-Astoria of the former officers and men of the 16th Infantry, which has been called to discuss the appearance last Monday night at the "Horror of the Rhine" meeting.

In Madison Square Garden of Alexander E. Anderson, formerly a lieutenant-colonel of the regiment. Many of the members, it was learned yesterday, feel Mr. Anderson was within his rights in appearing in the Garden meeting, while others assert his having done so has placed the regiment in a wrong light.

Among those who are expected to attend are "Big Bill" Donovan, former colonel, and the Rev. Father Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the unit, which formerly was the "Fighting" Sixty-ninth. Father Duffy is known to have a high regard for Mr. Anderson, and while the priest refused to appear in the Garden meeting because he thought it wrong, he has told friends that the former officer was entirely within his rights in appearing. Mr. Anderson had not received an invitation to to-night's meeting up to last night.

No action will be taken by the American Legion on the various post resolutions calling for the expulsion of Mr. Anderson, until March 19, when the State executive committee meets. It is understood the executive committee then will issue a statement, and it is considered possible that the suggestion that Gov. Miller remove Mayor Hylan for his failure to prevent the Garden meeting will be taken under consideration with a view to having the State branch endorse the appeal.

FRANCE FIXES WHEAT PRICE.

PARIS, March 6.—The price of the 1920 wheat crop will be maintained at 100 francs per quintal, M. Palsant, Under Secretary of the Ministry of Finance, announced in an address yesterday. (A quintal is 112 pounds.)

LIBERIA RULER HERE FOR 5 MILLION LOAN

President King Hopes to Conclude Credit Established in 1918.

Charles D. B. King, President of the Republic of Liberia and head of a mission that will go to Washington to-day to conclude negotiations with the State Department in regard to a credit of $5,000,000 established in the United States Treasury in 1918, arrived yesterday from London by the United States Mail steamship Pamlico State. President King was accompanied by Gabriel L. Dennis, secretary of the mission; Frederick E. R. Johnson of the Liberian Supreme Court and John L. Morris of the Liberian diplomatic service. The other members of the mission is P. G. Wolo, graduate of Harvard, who greeted his colleagues at Quarantine, where the President and his party were taken aboard the Coast Guard cutter Manhattan by representatives of the Department of State, landed at the Battery and escorted to the Waldorf-Astoria.

President King spent yesterday afternoon sightseeing, accompanied by the State Department representatives. He appeared in the authorized regalia of his office, including a chapeau with bird of paradise plumes. He was here two years ago. Before becoming President he was Attorney-General and Secretary of State.

Planting the Seed of Loyalty

If you should take a boy into your home, allow him to shift for himself and find, after a time, that he has become disloyal to you, would you place the blame wholly on his shoulders, or would you be inclined to take a bit yourself? Having taken him into your home, was it not your duty to try to destroy all that was unworthy in him, and develop all that was best?

The Greatest Home in the World

Every year Uncle Sam takes into this, the greatest home in the world, thousands of boys. Boys who are born on American soil and boys who are brought here from other lands. Most of these boys are allowed to shift for themselves. That a great number of them become disloyal has been more apparent these last few months in the many riots, disastrous strikes, bolshevik meetings, etc., which cause the hearts of true Americans to become heavy in their breasts.

Planting the Seed of Loyalty

There is much talk about planting the seed of loyalty; but the many theories advanced are, some of them impractical, all of them wrong in their point of attack. The seed of loyalty, if it is to bear the rich, full bloom that brings national happiness, must be planted in young hearts and brains; in the hearts of boys and girls who will be makers and executors of American prosperity.

The Rotary Club of New York has carried on a wonderfully successful Boys' Work Campaign for two years. The club feels that it is time to give all men and women who are interested in boys and in the future welfare of this country the benefit of its experience and also to consider any plans and theories which others may care to advance.

Rotary's Public Forum

For that reason, the Board of Directors of the Rotary Club of New York has sanctioned the plan of the Boys' Work Committee in organizing a Public Forum for the benefit of all boy workers, to meet on Thursday nights for eight sessions, beginning March 10 and ending April 28, at the Russell Sage Building, 130 East 22nd St., at 8 P. M. Sharp.

Under the non-partisan leadership of Rotary, an opportunity will be afforded all boys workers to become better equipped for their task. The eight sessions will be held without fee or obligation of any kind. It is hoped that everyone who finds it possible will take advantage of this public forum to do his bit toward learning how to "plant the seed of loyalty" in American boys.
